Hangover

Acrylic and pigments on canvas 250x150

Set up at the Iclub disco in Terrasini, (PA) Italy at 17:00 on the 22.07.2017.

At the beginning I explained the situation to the owner that i wanted to put a canvas on the floor and the first words he said to me were:

'It's going to be disgusting after the night and people might destroyed or steel it'; and i said to him that, that was the purpose of the whole experiment and that it was a risk that I was willing to take.

At the beginning of the night people seemed to not notice the canvas at first. Later on when everyone started to have few drinks they started to be very aware about the canvas under their feet .

From around 2 am they started to be very aware of the canvas...they used it as a platform doing flips over it or showing off anything they could do.

They were very excited to have this canvas under their feet.

They even started to play twister on it . They were very happy and enthusiastic until it became 3 am . Unfortunately in Italy at 3 am sharp they cut the music, even in the middle of a song; so once that happened everyon ewas so upset and they all through their drinks on top on the canvas.

The canvas was completely wet and sinking under alcohol.

I had to ask for help to shake it before I could take it and had to wrap it really quickly because they wanted everyone out.

So I wrapped the canvas completely soaking and took it home with me to then hang it on my balcony and let it dry.

What was amazing for me it was seeing how the canvas, even if it wasn't on the center of the disco, became the heart of the all night.

It became something so important for everyone to the point that when they were upset they wanted to hurt it .

So collectively everyone at ones just threw all they had left over in their cups over the canvas like a spoiled child that doesn't want to stop playing or having fun.
